Endeavour returned Monday

Space Shuttle Endeavour touched down at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida Monday at 11:55 a.m. CST, returning the third resident International Space Station crew to Earth after 129 days in space. Monday's landing brings to an end a more than 4.8 million mile voyage for Endeavour. It marked the 57th Shuttle landing at Kennedy. All seven STS-108 crew members are expected to return to a public welcome home at Hangar 990 at Houston's Ellington Field at 1 p.m. Wednesday.
